

Oil impact on rates hits record

IFR 2082 9 May 2015 to 15 May 2015 | By David Wigan

This content is available to IFR.com subscribers. Please login if you have a subscription. Alternatively, you can request a trial, or contact your IFR account manager for more information.

This content is only available to IFR.com subscribers

If you have a subscription to IFR, please enter your login details. If you have forgotten your login, you can request a reminder using the link below.

“We are in a low inflation environment, and deflationary forces in China include excess capacity and downward pressure on producer prices,” said Thierry Apoteker, CEO of TAC Economics. “Inflation in China is currently around 1.4%, a benign rate that is clearly one element of the deflationary risks in developed markets.”